Those With Grander Plans

By: Bruce Ruff

Everywhere I go I hear similar statements of people's frustration and feelings of disconnect, fear and disbelief about "why they (the politicians) can't see us or hear us."

How can it be that we speak so loudly and yet they, the politicians, don't seem to respond to us?

The Town Hall Meeting caravan converging on Washington, D.C., for another demonstration of the people's anger, disgust, frustration and fear will arrive on December 15TH 2009.

The hope of the conservatives is that their voices will finally be heard and rightness and logic will prevail.

What our present experiences are showing us, if we look critically, is that the American public has allowed itself to become too compartmentalized.

We've been seduced, through repetitive reminders, to allow ourselves to be placed into one special interest group or another.

We've experienced a constant sale of groups with special interests or needs. We now have special ethnic separation, gender separation, sexual preference separation, country of origin and on and on it goes.

The bottom line is this: We have been segregated by plan. Forces interested in power and control of America both inside and outside have collectively managed to stalemate and usurped all effective resistance efforts against the segregation of the American people.

Socialist-Communists-Marxist-Globalist movers and shakers have always known that segregation and isolation of people into more manageable groups is what is necessary to control large numbers of people. Small groups of people can more easily be pitted against each other and kept polarized. This keeps hate and separation alive and working against a common voice and common actions.

Think about the constant reminders you hear encouraging a third-party movement. This has been a common practice of people in power who understand that even if their vote numbers shrink to less than 50%, if they can get the opposition to split its votes up it doesn't take 50%+1 vote to win any longer – just the most votes!

The Socialist-Communists-Marxist-Globalist movers and shakers continue to own our visual and print media outlets. They've come, through tenacious effort, to hold a majority of the national, state and some local elected and appointed legislative office representative positions.

In the movie “Saving Private Ryan” there was a scene in which the American soldier who was enlisted for his special linguistic skills was thrown into combat and expected to perform as a combat soldier too. He was overwhelmed by fear and self survival. He had the physical tools to survive, prevail and save others – but he lacked the personal commitment to make that difference.

In one scene, a German soldier was allowed to enter a building, pass the linguist and engage in hand-to-hand combat with an American combat soldier who expended all his ammunition. There was a desperate struggle and the American soldier came to a final survival position - either prevail physically or submit to death at the hands of his enemy.

Many people have reached a point of exhaustion in their life. In submission to internal demands they hope to be dealt with compassionately. Most people experience exhaustion in physical exertion. By stopping the activity they can regain their breath and recover. But when this happens during a different and real challenge, and there are evil forces at hand, the submission allows the enemy to impose great harm or death.

In the final minutes of the movie scene we see the German soldier shushing the American soldier, who is exhausted and incapable of resisting any further. The enemy soldier thrust his knife blade into and through the American soldier’s chest killing him.

As the German soldier exited the scene he walked past the American linguistic soldier on a staircase. The German soldier simply continued down the stairs and out of the building leaving the linguist soldier alive. Sparing of the linguist soldier ensured a weak link remained in the American forces.

Real conflict is ugly!

Real heroes do exist – in military combat and domestic law enforcement combat.

Law enforcement members are paid to do the ugly law enforcement job our society wants and needs done. Enforced laws are necessary to have a civil society.

I want you to understand the difference between American politicians and American law enforcement professionals:

American Politicians, for far too long, have been allowed to and even expected to compromise even their ethics, morals and values to reach some type of political agreement or consensus.

Law enforcement professionals do not compromise because they enforce “the will of the people, the people’s laws,” the lines that ensure civility in a civil society. The law is not negotiated by law enforcement members. They don’t write laws they enforce them. Law enforcement professionals appear to most people to be stern, rigid and many times inflexible. Remember, this is their job. True law enforcement professionals don’t look for consensus; they solve situations through the implementation and enforcement of laws.

My point here is this:

The American people have been seduced ever so slowly and convincingly. Americans have essentially allowed those with a grander plan to succeed. We are being substantially harmed as a nation and are actually on the brink of destruction.

They, the evil forces, wishing to restructure our nation have reached their positions by using our very operational laws to arrive in an office with power. These same people then ignore our very Constitution. They are now so bold as to be simply shredding our legal documents and imposing their death-blows to this nation and her people.

We, the American people, have allowed “politics-as-usual, back-room deals, secret handshakes” and the like to germinate and grow in front of our very eyes. We have gazed elsewhere to avoid addressing the truths we could have clearly seen if we had had courage to look.

I spent 30-years protecting these same Americans I was sworn to serve.

I almost lost my life on several occasions during my 30-year career. On some of these occasions the threat was increased because of failures by department managers. People who were expected to provide equipment and service to assist those of us who were in the actual combat theater simply did not do the job. So those of us who did the work had to get by with what we had because evil and threat doesn't wait.

I have tried for over sixteen years now to get voters to look at the evidence of leadership failures.

I served San Diego County and its residents for 30-years. I offered my professional service, insight, and on occasion, even my life to fight against crime, criminals and lawlessness. Our heroic, active duty, military personnel have and do serve our nation in the dangerous theaters outside our country. Law enforcement members serve us in the same ways but on our home soil. In my opinion they are heroes one and all!

The power-brokers in our society have brought us to the place we are today. People of wealth and influence, and people simply intoxicated by power and influence, have repeatedly convinced the masses to believe things were the best they could be. In reality these same people have delivered us to the precipices we now must acknowledge and address.

The voters have allowed the power-brokers and politicians to remain deceitful.

There is wantonness, in America, to trust those we've elected to tend to the critical matters of our civil society. Yet we now see clearly the trust has been repeatedly broken for decades. In spite of the huge mountains of evidence available even in this political season we see more of the same.

Elected politicians everywhere are once again doing what they have always done. They endorse their friends early, building their political stables and ask people to continue to blindly trust them. This is how we got “Hope and change you can believe in!” How’s that working for us?

I say enough is enough!

I ask you to say enough is enough!

This sickness has gone on for far too long - and I fear it may continue until we, the American voters, feel our feet hit the ice-cold sea water that surrounds our nation at this very moment – just as the passengers on the Titanic did. They too trusted those in charge to keep them safe and secure – but it did not happen.

If we don’t stand together and remove the barriers of isolation that the evil forces have so carefully and skillfully slipped around us to keep us restricted and isolated – I fear we will wake to find we have lost all of our freedoms.

And if we, as a force for rightness, truth and justice and freedom for all, don’t become engaged and shout at the top of our lungs “Enough is enough,” we are doomed.

I ask you and all those you know to dig beneath the veneer of the politician’s claims. Seek answers to your questions. Examine each candidate personally and disregard endorsements in deference to your personal inquiry into the candidate’s expertise and real performance in the subject area they want to represent you in.

We all know Albert Einstein warned us about doing the same thing repeatedly yet expecting different results – that it was not healthy thought. Yet we have done this very thing politically for far too long now. Don’t you think it’s time for real change?

For three decades I have a history of standing in the way of evil and ensuring justice and safety for all. SO when I was asked to run another sheriff’s campaign I agreed. I believe we are on the brink of irreparable damage to our country and presently lack the leaders necessary to guide us back to rightness and safety.

We are at a point where either we stand up and resist more of the same, or as did the American soldier in the movie, we may find ourselves experiencing the plunging of a knife through the American family’s chest wall by the evil forces who are the fifth-column in our nation.

May God bless America!

We know what happened to the Titanic – please wake up, get involved and help those of us on the front lines make the difference we need to stave off this attack on America.
